YOUR COMMENTS ON THE CASE

The titchfield festival theatre is a successful independent arts space providing cost effective entertainment for the local community. They run theatre clubs for youth and adult theatre and actively encourage and are successful in running a true community based theatre. The arts are coming under increased pressure through under funding and the tichfield festival theatre is flourishing despite this. While I cannot comment on the conspiracy theories about fareham borough council trying to force all art spaces into the newly developed fernham hall, independent of this, well run community art projects should be encouraged. The fact that this theatre is providing such a success without massive taxpayer funding can only be a benefit to the local community. It should be allowed to thrive and continue to provide the invaluable service it does.
