YOUR COMMENTS ON THE CASE

I fully support the Titchfield Festival Theatre. It promotes the theatre in a completely different way being situated outside of the main towns and is an asset to the growing population in this area. The other location Ashcroft Centre is scheduled to close so the new venue in Fareham will be the only location to attend live events. It is also puts on events at Titchfield Abbey and The Great Barn . I would have thought that this Theatre could exist alongside the new Fareham Theatre and most importantly with the massive increase in population due to Welbourne which is between Fareham and Wickham plus the large increase in dwellings in the Stubbington gap which is between Titchfield Village and Stubbington this Theatre could exist and provide vital education in respect of the arts. Why not work together in this time of going it alone. If the Festival Theatre has breached planning regulations let's rectify the situation .
