YOUR COMMENTS ON THE CASE

The Arden is a phenomenal addition to Titchfield Festival Theatre that enhances educational opportunities for young people, provides employment opportunities for local people, benefits the local community through opportunities to volunteer as performers, stage crew and front of house volunteers, and through the production of first rate performances. The Arden has been installed in an existing building that has been owned and used by TFT for over 10 years. Additional parking is available at the Holiday Inn as well as the nursery opposite the theatre. This is not dissimilar to (and is in fact better than) many other theatres in the county where limited or no on-site parking is available. I have lived in the local area my entire life and seen many building developments erected throughout the years which the local area does not have the infrastructure to support. The Arden is not one of those developments. More designated parking would be a boon and the owners and trustees of TFT continue to work towards this. Support in that pursuit is the answer to any parking-related objection to The Arden, which is otherwise a valuable asset to the local area.
